

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

1. LECTIO accepts submission from graduate students only.
2. All manuscripts must either be in English or Filipino (Tagalog) ranging from 4,000-6,000 words accompanied by a 250-word abstract in English with 3-6 key words. All non-English words except for those accepted in the English vocabulary should be italicized. Book reviews should have a maximum of 2,500 words.
3. Manuscripts must be prepared for blind review. Author's name and institutional affiliation must not appear in the entire manuscript. In citing one's own work, please delete that reference and place <author's reference> in lieu of the actual citation.
4. When submitting, a separate sheet must contain the following information:
 - a. Author's information
 - i. Complete name (including middle initial)
 - ii. Institutional affiliation
 - iii. E-mail address

e.g. Juan I. dela Cruz
Department of Philosophy, University of Santo Tomas juandelacruz@sampleemail.com
 - b. Title of submission
 - c. Abstract (maximum of 250 words)
 - d. Key words (3-6)
no abstract and key words for book reviews
5. LECTIO adheres to the 16th edition of Chicago style for references.
 - a. Use footnotes instead of endnotes or parenthetical citations using the automated numbering system than manual superscripts as note references.
 - b. Closing quotation marks should be placed after the punctuation.
 - c. The first mention of a reference must contain the entire information. Subsequent references may be shortened with at least author, title, and page number/s.
 - d. For online journals, include the DOI when available.
 - e. For specific examples, please consult:
https://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/16/ch14/ch14_toc.html or https://arts.pdn.ac.lk/ichss/content/Chicago_Manual_of_Style.pdf
6. The entire manuscript must be set to 2.0 line spacing, 12-point font size, and Times New Roman. Quotations exceeding four lines should take a smaller font (10), single-spaced with a left indent. Margins are set to normal (1" around).
7. Contributions must be sent in Word format (.doc or .docx)
8. Submit your paper as an email attachment to lectio.journal.philosophy@gmail.com with the title "Article submission". The email should contain three attachments:
 - a. Manuscript prepared for blind review
 - b. Abstract with author's information (no. 4 above)
 - c. Updated curriculum vitae

By submitting your manuscript, you agree to be bound to the terms and conditions of LECTIO's publication ethics. Your manuscript must not be under consideration in another journal when it is currently under review by LECTIO. LECTIO does not charge any fee for the publication process.

PUBLICATION ETHICS

LECTIO is committed to meet the highest ethical standards in terms of research and academic publication and thus outlines the following responsibilities:

The Editorial Board

The Editorial Board accepts, rejects, or recommends a manuscript for revision or even re-submission based chiefly on the recommendations of nominated referees and informs authors of the decision of their submission. During review process, information about the manuscript remains confidential until the final decision has been arrived at. The Board may choose to reject a paper that violates certain legal provisions such as but not limited to copyright and libel.

The Referee

The referees are considered specialists in their respective disciplines and primarily contribute to the editorial board's decision to accept, reject, or revise manuscripts based on their objective assessments or recommendations. During a manuscript's review, a referee must maintain the process' confidentiality and objectively assess the paper based on its academic merit without any bias to the author's race, sexual orientation, gender, religious views or political orientations.

The Author

The authors should prepare the manuscript for blind review, ensuring its originality while adhering to the journal's citation standards. They should be mindful that no part of the paper is plagiarized and that it is not currently under review in any other publication avenue, lest immediate rejection from the journal. Publishing with LECTIO implies adherence to the journals' copyright provisions.

Copyright

LECTIO is an open access journal. Copyrights of articles published with the journal remain with their respective authors and may be republished with due acknowledgement of LECTIO.

Articles published in LECTIO do not necessarily express the views of the Editorial Board.

VOX: A PHILOSOPHY BLOG

VOX seeks to be a casual forum for philosophic exchange across academic levels. The word VOX is Latin for voice, and this philosophy blog gives an ear to arising voices within academic circles while challenging its readers to be discerning on the various voices clamoring for attention today. By providing an avenue for interested parties to share their thought pieces, Vox is a meeting place for varying perspectives and a platform for philosophic exchange regardless of affiliation or academic attainment. It caters to philosophical comments on current social, political, or ethical concerns and also hosts further discussions from seminars and conferences. In this regard, we invite philosophy practitioners, students, and enthusiasts to submit short but thought-provoking pieces with a pronounced philosophic bent of not less than 1,000 but not more than 1,500 words. Vox features two or three pieces monthly. It is maintained and managed by the Editorial Board of Lectio: A Graduate Journal of Philosophy of the University of Santo Tomas.

CONTACT US

For submission of article for the journal, intention to be a peer-reviewer or referee for the journal, general questions about the journal and blog, submission of entry for the blog, suggestions of theme and general improvement on the site, you may email us through lectio.journal.philosophy@gmail.com. Indicate your intention in the subject of the email.

For updates regarding the journal and the upcoming conferences, please visit our Facebook page, Lectio: A Graduate Journal of Philosophy.

Should you take interest in submitting an article for the journal, please read the submission guidelines.

Should you take interest in submitting an entry for the blog, send your thought pieces to lectio.journal.philosophy@gmail.com with the following in the subject heading: Vox Entry - (title of thought piece). Include in this email your full name, institutional affiliation, and your thought piece subject for review by the Editorial Board. The thought pieces must be short but thought-provoking with a pronounced philosophic bent of not less than 1,000 but not more than 1,500 words.

Should you take interest in becoming a peer-reviewer or referee, include the following within your email:

- complete name
- active email address
- institutional affiliation and position
- area of expertise
- suggested theme to introduce to the journal, if applicable